President's Message

Cześć/Sziasztok!
Hope everyone had a great summer!
Happy Fall and Winter!

This issue is a bit overdue but not for lack of material. We have definitely kept ourselves quite busy in 2018/19!

Most importantly, I'd like to thank you for your continued support throughout my first full term as President. It is a lot of work but I love doing what I do. I truly am grateful for you, my Pulaski family.

Second, I'd like to thank all of our regular dues paying members! You help keep us going strong. Help keep us going strong by encouraging other active and retired members of the service to join. There is strength in numbers!

In case you may have missed anything, here's a recap of some of the majors:

- We hosted our 62nd Annual Pulaski Dinner Dance on April 13, 2018 at Leonard's of Great Neck. We honored Chief Thomas Burns, Commanding Officer of Employee Relations/Family Assistance Section along with heroism awardees – Police Officer (and member since he was in the academy) John Maderick and his partner Police Officer Brian Coffey of the 106 Pct for their house fire rescue, and Det. Christian Quezada of the 106 Pct Det. Squad for his work on the Karina Vetrano case in Howard Beach. It was an excellent time and a lot of fun. Chief Burns is a true gentleman!
- On June 18th, we were in attendance at the Harbor Boat naming ceremony in honor of Michael J. Buczek and Christopher Hoban.
- On July 20, Lt. Janusz Kojs, Police Officer Maciej Kosmaty and myself were in attendance - at the invite of Policja Commander in Chief, General Jaroslaw Szymczyk – at the 99th Anniversary of the Policja and the centenary celebration of Independence in Warsaw, Poland. It was my first time in Poland and I felt truly welcomed by their Department. It was an amazing experience!
- On October 7th, we celebrated and marched at the 81st Annual NYC Pulaski Parade. We'd like to thank Commissioners Reznick, Richardson, and Ganley and Chief Morris for marching with us.

- On October 18th, we attended the 30th Annual Memorial mass in honor of Michael J. Buczek and Christopher Hoban.
- On December 1st we had our first combined Children's Christmas Party with the NYPD Steuben Association, hosted by our own Father Ed Kachurka at St. Mary's Nativity Church. There were a lot of children in attendance and plenty of room to play. I was amazed by the amount of "thank you" texts I received afterwards by so many parents! Apparently, the face painting clowns and magician (retired Steuban member – Bob Statler), along with a lengthy appearance by K-9 Zada (Police Officer Irma Lozada's namesake, who happened to be bred in Hungary) and a visit from Mounted and Aviation tired so many of the kids out that many parents in attendance had a wonderfully peaceful night that evening!
- We hosted our 63rd Annual Pulaski Dinner Dance on April 26th at Leonard's of Great Neck. We honored Chief of Department Terence Monahan along with heroism awardees – Lt. Marek Nowak (Criminal Intel Section), Detectives Nicholas DeRobertis and Jaime Santiago; Suffolk Police Officer Mateusz Krzeminski and Sgt. John Arnold; and most notably – (ret.) Police Officer Walter Wasilewski. Walter is the catalyst to bringing back the Pulaski medal of honor. This revised medal will now be awarded at each upcoming dinner dance and it will be given in honor and in the memory of Michael J. Buczek. Michael's sister, Mary Jo, was in attendance and very happy to see that we will always keep her brother's memory close to our hearts.
- In July 2019, the NYPD Pulaski Association along with the NYPD Soccer team were invited to play in a soccer match against the Policja in Warsaw, Poland.

Polish Hungarian Friendship Day

By Stef Komar

On March 12, 2007, the parliament of Hungary, with no abstentions or opposing votes, established Hungarian – Polish Friendship Day, to be held every 23rd of March. Four days later, the Polish parliament did the same by acclamation. Ever since, the two countries celebrate their mutually acknowledged and important historical friendship. Both countries organize exhibits and cultural events that touch on this theme, as do their Diasporas around the world. In New York City, for example, Poles and Hungarians organize a cultural event to celebrate this day in either Greenpoint, at the Polish National Home, or at the Hungarian Cultural Center in the Upper West Side of Manhattan.

Probably the most pronounced manifestation of Polish Hungarian friendship is that most citizens of either country are able to recite in their respective language the popular saying that can be translated into English more or less as follows: A Pole and Hungarian - two brothers, who drink together, and fight with the sword alongside one another.

Polish Hungarian friendly relations go back centuries, to the times of their first reigning dynasties - the Polish Piast and the Hungarian Arpad families. Bela I was married to Richeza of Poland. Adelaida, sister of Mieszko II, King of Poland, was wife of Geza, King of Hungary. Boleslaw V married Kinga, daughter of Bela IV. Her brothers followed her to Hungary and became Bishops in the Hungarian Catholic church. Polish Maria of Bytom, who happened to be the great granddaughter of Hungarian Bela IV, became Queen of Hungary by marrying Charles I. After Maria died, Charles married Polish Elizabeth of Kujavia, who gave him male heirs. Jadwiga, daughter of Polish King Boleslaw the Pious and Jolenta of Hungary, married Polish King Wladyslaw I to become Queen of Poland. Elzbieta, the daughter of Wladyslaw I and the above mentioned Jadwiga, married Hungarian King Karol Robert and became Queen of Hungary. Their son, in turn, was Ludwig the Great, King of both Poland and Hungary. He married Elzbieta Bosniaczka of Poland and their daughter, also Jadwiga, became the Queen ruler of Poland who, acting as ruler, led two successful military campaigns. She then married the Duke of Lithuania, Wladyslaw Jagiello, thereby creating the Polish Lithuanian Commonwealth. Beloved for her charitable work and sacrifices for the poor, Queen Jadwiga was proclaimed a Saint due to miracles attributed to her. Her sister Mary was Queen of Hungary.

Wladyslaw Jagiello, had no children from Jadwiga, who died with her infant daughter after child birth. He did, however, start a new Polish Dynasty with children from his fourth wife, Zofia Holszanska. The Jagiellonian dynasty also developed familial relationships between Poland and Hungary. The son of Jagiello, Wladyslaw III, was King of both Poland and Hungary and died in the battle of Varna against the Turks. The grandson of Jagiello, Wladyslaw II Jagiellonczyk, was King of Hungary. His son, Ludwig Jagiellonczyk, was also King of Hungary, killed in the battle of Mohacz, also against the Ottoman Turks.

The relationships continued after the Turkish Ottomans and the German Habsburg Empire partitioned Hungary. Jan II Zygmunt Zapolya, Prince of Transylvania, an Ottoman vassal state, was the son of Hungarian King Jan Zapolyi and Polish Izabella Jagiellonka, with Izabella being the daughter of Polish King Zygmunt I the Old.

Stefan Batory, the succeeding Prince of Transylvania, was married to Polish Anna Jagiellonczyk and became the elected King of Poland in 1575. He introduced many successful reforms, especially to the Polish army, creating, for example, the renowned Polish winged Hussar cavalry.

These familial relationships were arranged to reinforce mutual support against common threats such as the Ottoman Empire, the German Kingdom, Austria, and later, Russia. These relationships also helped in sorting out family disputes. In 1060 future King Bela I received military assistance from Poland against his brother, King Andrew. His sons Geza and Ladislaus also received military assistance from Poland upon German invasion of Hungary in support of King Andrew's son, Solomon. Polish King Boleslaw II, the Bold, sent troops to install Laszlo as King of Hungary, who then gave Boleslaw refuge from a rebellion by Polish oligarchs that deposed him. An attack by Polish King Boleslaw III in 1108 on an ally of German King Henry V prompted the German King to abandon his siege on a town within which the Hungarian King Coloman was trapped. The leaders of the Hungarian Uprising against the Habsburgs of 1703 headed by Francis Rakoczy regrouped in Poland and then sought protection there after they lost. Conversely, the leaders of the 1768 rebellion led by Casimir Pulaski against increasing Russian domination of Poland fled to Hungary for safety upon defeat.

The history of Poland and Hungary is filled with similarities that seem to have strengthened mutual sympathy and cooperation. Poland accepted Christianity in 966 after the baptism of Mieszko I. Hungary became Christian in 1000 (or 1001) with the Baptism of Stephen I. The nobility in both countries were powerful in relation to the crowned rulers, and had to be reckoned with. In Poland, in fact, the nobility elected the Kings by voting in parliamentary sessions. In Habsburg Hungary, any new monarch had to go through a coronation ceremony that included an oath to respect the rights of the nobility. In both cases the nobility could refuse, or were exempt from, paying taxes to the Monarchy, which weakened the ability to raise necessary funding in times of crisis. Poland and Hungary each had a parliament that represented only the land-owning nobility. Poland in 1791 became the first European country to have ratified a constitution, and previously had various decrees and agreements, establishing a framework of rights and governance. In Hungary around the same time, the collection of various historical documents spelling out agreements and norms, were increasingly treated in terms of a constitution. Both countries disappeared from the map due to occupation. The populations of both countries at some point endured attempts to wipe out their respective national identities through prohibitions on the use of their language in addition to other repressions. Both populations revolted several times in attempts to achieve independence, and both populations succumbed to the overwhelming forces of multiple empires that cooperated in suppressing those revolts. The rebels from one country assisted the rebels of the other. In the 1848 Hungarian revolution against the Habsburgs, Polish volunteers flocked to help the Hungarian cause and two Polish generals, Henryk Dembinski and Jozef Bem, at separate times became Commanders-in-Chief of the Hungarian rebel army.

Both Poland and Hungary achieved full independence after World War I, with the boundaries of both much smaller than at peak power in past centuries, and both with sizeable populations of their respective ethnic groups finding themselves outside the borders of their country. Hungary, as an autonomous part of the Austro-Hungarian Empire was treated as an independent member of the losing side in the war. Poland, on the other hand, was treated as a nation subordinated by the members of both parties to the war, with the majority of Polish independent forces fighting on the side of the victors. Nonetheless, Poland ended up in armed conflict due to border disputes with all its newly re-created neighbors except Romania.

The two countries immediately established positive relations. During the Polish Bolshevik war, Communists and anti-Polish influences in England, France, Germany and Czechoslovakia prevented military help and supplies from reaching Poland, in danger of being overrun by the numerically superior Bolshevik forces. Hungary offered to send 30,000 cavalry troops to help Poland. When Czechoslovakia refused passage to the troops and also to supplies, Hungary did send trains with tons of badly needed ammunition, at no cost to Poland, through Romania. This help is considered one of the main contributing factors in the ultimate resounding Polish victory that saved Europe from Communism, at least for the time being.

Prior to the outbreak of World War II, Hungary agreed to ally itself with Germany against the Soviet Union. Poland declined, and became an increasing target of German hostility and aggression. When Germany annexed Czechoslovakia and created a separate Slovakia, Hungary took back territory of Czechoslovakia that it felt should have been given to Hungary. As a result, Poland and Hungary once again had a common border, which was emotionally celebrated by rank and file soldiers who spontaneously embraced one another when Hungarian troops reached the new border. Hitler, in preparation for the invasion of Poland, expected that German troops would be able to use this territory to attack. Pal Teleki, Prime Minister of Hungary, however, jeopardized his alliance with Germany and wrote to Hitler "It is a matter of national honor not to be involved in any military action against Poland. Hungary can not take such action for moral reasons." During the campaign against Poland, Germany demanded to send troops by railroad through Hungary. Hungarian head of state Miklos Horthy replied that he "would sooner blow up the rail lines than to participate in an attack on Poland".

Hundreds of thousands of Polish citizens, including dignitaries, troops, and airmen were allowed entry out of Poland into Hungary during the dual German and Soviet invasion and occupation, and were given substantial help. The Polish Embassy along with the Polish Red Cross was allowed to function in Hungary for some time after the fall of Poland. Poles were also assisted in leaving Hungary to reach Polish army bases and allied territories around the world. Once there they formed military formations and a government-in-exile, and later took part in fighting Germany in France, Norway, the skies of England, etc., and also helped liberate France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark and other parts of Europe after D-Day. It was in Budapest that Polish diplomat Henryk Slawik, after Germany installed a fascist government in Hungary that began persecuting Jews, distributed false documents to Jews establishing non-Jewish ethnicity, thereby saving up to 5000 Jews from the Holocaust.

During the German occupation of Poland, Hungarian troops stationed in Poland, were known to protect the Poles in their near vicinity from German brutality, or provide warnings, food and arms. During the 1944 Warsaw Uprising, not only did they not fight the Polish rebels, did not commit atrocities against city residents alongside the Germans, but aided Poles as much as they could and came close to switching sides.

Both countries ended up after World War II under the Soviets, and were governed by Soviet supported Communist regimes. The populations of both distinguished themselves in their opposition to Communism, and supported one another in this.

In 1956, Hungarians gathered at the monument of General Jozef Bem to show support for protests in Poland against Communist rule. This triggered the anti-Communist Hungarian revolution that briefly liberated Hungary from Soviet oppression. In response, Poles openly defied their own Soviet controlled regime and delivered tons of blood and medical supplies, by train, vehicle and even plane, to Hungary that resisted and openly fought Soviet troops.

After the fall of the Soviet Union, both countries joined NATO and the European Union and have stuck together to challenge French and German domination within the European Union. Their alliance is the core of the recent alignment of all former Eastern bloc countries that have successfully collaborated to push shared interests. When Poland or Hungary were criticized for implementing needed reforms to limit the influences of former Communists, mischaracterized as the weakening of the rule of law, they were able to thwart sanctions by working together. On a human level, both populations are undoubtedly sympathetic towards the other. To get a true sense of Polish Hungarian friendship, go to the following link: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=YlxM7UmGhGU> Watch the interaction between regular Poles and Hungarians at one of the past parades that takes place every year in Budapest on March 15, the National Holiday that commemorates the 1848 rebellion that Poles actively took part in. You can that easily differentiate who is Polish or Hungarian by the flags they are carrying. Every year thousands of Poles go to Budapest on this day to show support for the Hungarians who wholeheartedly greet them. For many it is visibly a heartwarming and emotional experience. The Poles can then wait a few days and celebrate Polish Hungarian Friendship Day on March 23rd in Hungary, or return to Poland and celebrate there.

Long live Polish-Hungarian friendship!

(Disclosure: Both the current President of the NYPD Pulaski Association, Donna Zabo, and the author of this article, Stef Komar, are of Polish Hungarian heritage.)

It was also during this trip that Policja Commander in Chief, General Jaroslaw Szymczyk, invited our Association and the soccer team to attend a ceremony for the 100th Anniversary of the Policja. The trip was turned into a once in a lifetime experience by Bronx trustee, Martin Toczek. Martin planned and coordinated our entire trip which included time in the beautiful cities of Krakow and Warsaw, tours of the Wieliczka salt mine/Warsaw Uprising Museum/Auschwitz – Birkenau/home and parish visit of Pope John Paul, a visit and tour of the Policja Riot Facility Center (some of us got to ride in their water cannon trucks!), and so much more! We were joined by Chief Lori Pollock and Deputy Inspector Jessica Corey. Along with the NYPD Soccer Team, we had almost 50 people in attendance, many of which were in uniform at the promotion and anniversary celebration. President Andrzej Duda was at the ceremony and we proudly marched in front of him in formation. Dziękuję bardzo Martin! Such an amazing experience and so many new friends were made! For pictures of the Pulaski Association visit to Poland go to: <https://spark.adobe.com/page/F0xS GuduPK9zX/>

- On October 6th, our Association marched in the 82nd Annual NYC Pulaski Day parade. Although I was not in attendance, a great time was had by all and we'd like to thank Police Commissioner James O'Neill and Commissioners Reznick, Richardson and Ganley for marching with us.
- On October 18th, we were in attendance at the 31st Annual Memorial mass in honor of Michael J. Buczek and Christopher Hoban.

I can't imagine that I missed anything and if I did, I will get it the next time! We will try to come out with more newsletters but with the option to receive via email. It will save us a lot of money and focus on the preferences of our members.

As your President, I will continue to strive to do the best I can in maintaining and bettering our organization. I encourage you to keep up with us on social media and attend our meetings. I love seeing everyone in person! We will continue to have guest speakers at our meetings and great food and company.

Please be safe out there and know I am always available should you need to speak to me.

With love,

Donna M. Zabo
President

RETIREE'S MESSAGE

A warm greeting to all my retired brothers and sisters.

The retired members of the NYPD Pulaski association were very proudly represented at this years Pulaski Day Parade. Newly retired Lt. Greg Chupa joined us this year for the first time. I would like to thank our retired Citywide Trustee Bill Grodnick for bringing his Harley out this year. Bill mounted a huge Polish flag to his motorcycle and he led the retired members up Fifth Avenue. Bill thoughtfully placed Tom Jakubowski's Pulaski cap on the headlight in memory of our dear friend that we recently lost. We delighted in the memory of Past President Tony Pierzgaliski dancing the Polka on Fifth Avenue with Carol Golis. Ben and Jean Szempruch made a surprise visit to the Kowalinski Post in Maspeth after the parade. It was great to see everyone and I would like to thank all those who participated. Like every year, this years parade gave all of us retiree's an opportunity to see some old friends, remember those friends that we have lost and to enjoy some great Polish food. Sto Lat!

Please remember Past President Anne Marie Verbil in your prayers. Anne Marie is currently battling 911 cancer. She is in good spirits and sounds great. We all look forward to her recovery and her return to our company.

Thomas J. Ryan
Past President
